- Co-occurrence of child abuse & domestic violence.
- Epidemiology of child abuse, including common injuries of concern.
- Difficulties in detecting child abuse & use of screening tools.
- Details of Statewide QI collaborative on improving recognition & response to sentinel injuries, which may indicate early stage abuse.

The number of abused and neglected children in Ohio is staggering. Too many children are being abused in places where children should be safe from harm – in their own homes and their own communities. Too many children are being injured or killed by those entrusted to protect them – parents, step-parents, parent's boy/girlfriend, and caretakers. Child abuse frequently co-occurs with domestic violence. How can we identify the early signs before it's too late?
